COLORADO.

The D. & R. G. Compromise.

Special to the Gazette:

Denver, March 26.—Information received here from New York state that the new compromise between the Denver & Rio Grande and the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe has been signed and sealed. Legal representatives of both roads have gone to Washington to have the decree entered which is the final act. But little information has been received about the compromise, still it is known that the Denver & Rio Grande company get back its road and have exclusive possession of the Grand Canon.

OLD MEN AT WORK.

How Men of 65 Appear Young and Others at 55 Frisky.

What Active Men of Four Score are Doing.

Essayists at Nine-Two and Soldiers at Eighty-Three.

How Old Senators and Representatives are.

Age of Presidential Candidates.

Ex-Senator Cameron, a defendant in a breach of promise suit at nearly four score, keeps his eighty first birthday to-day. Thurlow Weed, who is his senior by two years, probably thinks him a promising youth. The truth is that Juniores ad labores is no longer the rule of modern society. Perhaps at no other period of the world's history has so much of its important work been in the hands of old men as now. It is curious, too, by the way, what strange illusions are widely entertained on this matter of the ages of men famous in action. Thanks to Macaulay's brilliant ballad, people picture Coligny to themselves as a venerable martyr; yet he was only fifty three when he was murdered. "Old John of Gaunt, time-honored Lancaster," did not see three score. James I., whom the readers of Scott usually think about as a hoary sinner, died at fifty nine.

WHO ARE NOW OLD MEN.

Malone has aptly said that "our ancestors, in their estimate of old age, appear to have proceeded somewhat differently from us, and to have considered men as old whom we should now esteem middle aged. With them every man who has passed fifty seems to have been accounted an old man. King Henry II. is represented as old by Daniel, in his poem of 'Rosamond,' though he died at the age of fifty-six, and Robert, Earl of Leicester, is called an old man by Spenser in a letter to Gabriel Harvey in 1582, at which time Leicester was not fifty years old." The improvement of sanitary science and conditions and the greater facilities placed at the command of a worker with the brain nowadays may have something to do with the fact that in the nineteenth century a man of fifty or fifty-five is regarded as in middle age only, while a hale and active septuagenarian or octogenarian is accepted without any surprise and quite as a matter of fact. There is, however, this to be said of the old men of the time—we are dealing rather with selected lives. The weaker, the intemperate, and the careless have been eliminated before arriving at middle age, and at fifty-five or so the sound, strong, wise man finds himself, with his fortune made, able to command all imaginable aids and appliances for the transaction of the business to which he addresses himself.

ENGLISH LORDS.

The life of the politician or statesman is necessarily more exciting and exhausting than that of the merchant or professional man, yet in England at least people have come to look upon a septuagenarian party leader or minister as a thing in the course of nature. Palmerston died at eighty one and Russell at eighty six. Lord Beaconsfield is seventy-five, and is rather a young man as peers go, though indeed in a legislative assembly when the qualification is rank, where most of the members have taken life easily and especially where the term of service is only ended by death, we should look for exceptionally aged lawmakers. Viscount Stratford de Redcliffe, wearing his ninety two years lightly enough, is the senior member of the house of lords, as he is of the privy council and of the European diplomatic corps. "The Great Eltchi" of Kinglake's history has sat at the council board for sixty years and is the last survivor of the famous congress of Vienna. The Earl of Buckinghamshire, the father of Hobart Pasha, is eighty seven, and is the oldest peer of his rank, though one Irish nobleman, Lord Kilmorey, who has just made a stir in the land question, is ninety-three. Lord Mostyn, the oldest of the English barons, is eighty five, whose oldest son, Lord Elcho, the founder of the English volunteer system, is sixty two; the Marquis of Donegal, the oldest of the British marquesses, is eighty three; the Bishop of Llandaff, the oldest prelate in the house of lords, is eighty-two; the Earl of Albemarle, a Waterloo veteran, is eighty-one.

MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

In the house of commons where the members are elected and the work is much harder, we need not expect to find such very old men, yet more than forty M. P's. have passed the allotted age of three score and ten. Sir Thomas Bazley, one of the members for Manchester, is eighty three, being but a few weeks the senior of the member for Carnarvon, Mr. William Bulkeley Hughes, who is eighty three; Mr. M. T. Bass is eighty-one; Mr. Duncan McLaren, of Edinburgh, and Mr J. S. W. S. Erle Drax, a man with a rent-roll as long as his name, are eighty. Among the veteran members we find the Right Hon. C. P. Villers, aged seventy-eight, who made his annual motions for free trade before the days of Cobden and the League, and ere yet famine had forced Peel's hand and compelled him to abandon the Corn laws, and who is the delight even now of London dinner parties, Mr. G. W. Bentinck, one year his junior, one of the protectionists of the same epoch, and England's model Tory, was one of the devoted six who voted for reciprocity a few nights ago. Mr. Samuel Morley, who will head the attack on the government's water scheme, is seventy-one, while there sits for Clare, at the age of seventy seven, the O'Gorman Mahon who, more than fifty years ago, was one of O'Connell's "fighting brigade." Mr. Gladstone is seventy-one; Bright and Lowe are sixty-nine; the speaker, the Right Hon. H. B. W. Brand, is a mere lad of sixty six.

GERMAN SOLDIERS.

In Germany, though Bismarck is only sixty-five, "old age hath yet its honor and its toil." The Emperor is almost eighty-three, and Moltke is eighty. Around them are a group of terrible septuagenarian and octogenarian warriors, rivals of "Papa" Wrangel, not the least vigorous of whom is Marshal Manteuffel, who at seventy-one has undertaken the ticklish charge of ruling Alsace and Lorraine. Continental warriors, however, are apt to live long. Espartero died last year at eight-seven, and Changarnier not long before him at eighty-four; Kossuth at seventy-eight is writing his memoirs; Garibaldi is seventy-three, and has lived for twenty years under the pangs of complaints that would have killed many younger men; Canrobert is seventy-one. Besides them what comparative youths are our own generals of the civil war which was brought to a close fifteen years ago—Sherman being sixty; Sheridan, forty-seven; Grant, fifty eight; Hancock, fifty-six; McClellan, fifty-four, and so on.

KINGS AND DIPLOMATS.

The rulers of Europe, except the emperor of Germany, are comparatively young folk in the estimation of this generation that is. Christian IX, of Denmark, is seventy two; the pope is seventy, the king of Holland is sixty three, the czar is sixty two, Queen Victoria is sixty one, etc. But Russia can boast in Prince Gortschakoff at eighty two, the oldest active diplomatist in the world, his solitary senior, Lord Stratford de Redcliffe, not having engaged in statecraft for many years, though he has contributed to the magazines and written some verses on the Zulu war for the Times which lent additional terrors to the rout of Isandulwana and the editorial page of the Thunderer. Count von Beust, who is recently left the helm in Austria, is seventy one. Metternich, it may be said, lived to be eighty-six, and Talleyrand to be eighty-four, though both of these withdrew from public life some time ere their death.

LITERARY MEN.

The literary men of the nineteenth century are nearly all of them old. Hugo, we have said, is seventy eight; Terenzio Mamiani at eighty can write books of sufficient vigor to merit the honors of the "Index;" Ranke—how odd it seems to readers of Macaulay to think of Ranke and Gladstone surviving him so long!—is eighty five; so is Carlyle; John Payne Collier, at ninety-one, is still writing; so is William Chambers at eighty; so is Mr. S. C. Hall at seventy-nine; Mr. Hayward is seventy seven; Lord Houghton, John Stuart Blackie and Tennyson, at seventy one, may almost be called young men; Tupper is seventy; William Howitt died not long ago at eighty-four, though his wife survives. Though it is not long since we lost Bryant at eighty-four, Henry C. Carey at eighty-six, and Richard Henry Dana at ninety-two, we may put forward Emerson at seventy-seven, Longfellow at seventy-three, Holmes at seventy-one Lowell is a mere youth of sixty-one and Bancroft at eighty as good specimens of litterateurs who have not felt their years. Thiers was eighty when he died in the midst of the great electoral campaign of 1877. Of the "immortals" sixteen are aged seventy or over, Mignet being eighty-four, Duvergier de Hauranne and Dufaure eighty-two, J. B. Dumas and M. de Viel-Castel eighty, while Littre is seventy-nine, and Hugo seventy-eight.

MUSICAL MEN.

In musical circles we note that Sir Julius Benedict at seventy-six has taken a young wife; Sir Michael Costa is seventy, Ole Bull is seventy, Liszt is sixty-nine. Old Baron Taylor died not many months ago at ninety. Planche, we believe, "still lives" at eighty-four, Ben. Webster is eighty, Buckstone died last year at seventy-seven, having played till he was seventy five; Mathews died at seventy five and Phelps at seventy four.

THEOLOGIANS.

Among churchmen, we find hale old men at the front everywhere. In the Sacred College Cardinal Caterini is eighty-five, and so is Archbishop Dondel, of Bordeaux; Cardinal de Bonnechose is eighty, thirty other princes of the church have attained or exceeded the age of seventy. Cardinal Newman is seventy-nine; Cardinal Manning is seventy-two; our own Cardinal McCloskey is seventy—and he has not a few seniors in the church in America, as Archbishop Kenrick, of St. Louis, who is seventy-four and Archbishop Purcell, of Cincinnati, who is eighty. Father Beckx, the general of the Jesuit order, is eighty-five. Father Curci, the eminent Catholic theologian, has at eighty just produced his new bible. Dr. Pusey is eighty; Canon Dollinger is eighty-one. It would not be rash to wager that any one of the venerable clergymen already mentioned would outlive Mr. Spurgeon, though he is only forty-six. Dean Stanley, it may be said, is sixty-five. Of the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church in this country Bishop Scott is seventy-seven and Bishop Simpson, the next eldest, nearly seventy. Besides Dr. Tyng, who kept his eightieth birthday last week, Mr. Beecher is sixty-eight; James Freeman Clarke is seventy, President McCosh is sixty-nine, President Barnard, of Columbia, is seventy-one, to say nothing of a score of still older divines and dons that might be mentioned.

LAWYERS.

In Sir Alexander Cockburn the English legal profession has lost one of its most active and versatile lawyers; Caleb Cushing, who dressed the lord chief justice down so effectually, died at seventy nine, after having done work enough for four ordinary lives. Charles O'Conor at seventy six, and Jere S. Black at seventy, may be fairly pitted against any two English lawyers of their years, precisely as Ericsson, at seventy-seven, would not have had competitor for M. de Lesseps, and Peter Cooper at ninety might be set forth as an American rival of Montefiore.

MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

American precocity is shown in nothing so conspicuously as in the rolls of congress. The present house of commons contains a very large proportion of young men, but more than six per cent. of its members are septuagenarians or octogenarians. Instead of the eighteen or twenty congressmen of seventy and over that we should have if the same proportion were maintained here we have but two—"Joe" Johnson, who is seventy three, and Mr. Hendrick B. Wright, who is seventy-two. Speaker Randall is fifty-two, or fourteen years the junior of the English speaker. Fifteen representatives are reported ranging in age from sixty-five to sixty-nine, General Singleton, of Illinois, and Mr. Wait, of Connecticut, being sixty-nine; Mr. A. H. Stephens, Mr. Fernando Wood and Mr. A. B. James, sixty-eight; Mr. Sawyer, of Missouri, sixty seven; Mr. Price, of Iowa, Messrs. Chittenden and Lapham, of New York, Judge Kelley, of Pennsylvania, and General Barlow, of Vermont, sixty six; and Messrs. Miles, of Connecticut, McLane, of Maryland, W. A. Wood, of New York, and A. Herr Smith, of Pennsylvania, sixty five.

SENATORS AND EX SENATORS.

In the senate but two gentlemen have reached threescore years and ten. Mr. Hamlin, who is seventy one, and Mr. Morrill, of Vermont, who is seventy. Next to these come Kirkwood, of Iowa, sixty seven; Baldwin, of Michigan, sixty six; Anthony, and Davis of Illinois, sixty five and Eaton sixty four. Ex-secretary Fish at seventy-two, Mr. Jefferson Davis at the same age, as well as Thurlow Weed and ex-Senator Cameron, are worth mentioning as men who have lived busy lives and yet have not their natural force abated. Mr. Dix, it may be remembered, died not long ago at eighty-one.

PRESIDENT AND CABINET.

The president is fifty-eight and the vice-president sixty-one. Only one member of the cabinet has passed seventy—Secretary Thompson, aged seventy-one. Secretary Evarts is sixty two, Secretary Sherman fifty-seven, Secretary Schurz fifty one, Postmaster General Key fifty-six, Attorney General Devens sixty and Secretary Ramsey sixty-five. After all, these ages do not vary materially from those of the members of the British Cabinet, Lord Beaconsfield's oldest colleagues being the Duke of Northumberland, seventy, and Viscount Cranbrook, sixty-six, and his youngest, Colonel Stanley, thirty nine, and Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, forty three.

PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES.

A list of the ages of the candidates for the presidential nominations will interest all our readers and may surprise some of them, for there are several illusions cherished on the subject. Charles Francis Adams is seventy-three; his father, John Quincy Adams, died at eighty-one, and his father, John Adams, at ninety one; Horatio Seymour is seventy; Mr. Tilden, sixty six; Senator Davis, sixty five, ex Governor Parker, of New Jersey, seventy-four; Senator Thurman, sixty-one; Mr. Hendricks, sixty one; ex President Grant, fifty eight; Secretary Sherman, fifty seven; General Hancock, fifty six; General McClellan, fifty four; Senator Bayard, fifty two; Senator Conkling, fifty one and Senator Blaine, fifty.—New York World.

Manager.

Gen. J. C. Wilson did not own a share of Little Pittsburg on the 13th of March, 1880. He also was in the ring and unloaded in time.

Between February 21 and March 15 Chaffee and Moffat unloaded 85,000 shares of Little Pittsburg. Yet they declare they are honest and have not parted with their stock.

A brother of General J. M. Palmer of Illinois who is a candidate for the democratic nomination for the presidency, lives in Trinidad. The News says he will vote for the republican candidate even if his brother is nominated.

Hon. L. P. Morton, one of the so called gold sharps, contributed one fourth of the cargo on the Constellation for the relief of Irish sufferers. He has very little to say however about his friendship for the laboring man. He allows Kearney and that ilk to do the talking.

A state of war exists between the Utes and the whites in Colorado. This fact seems to have been overlooked by the government. But this fact will be made patent inside of sixty days. Register-Call.

The peculiar thing about this war between the settlers and the Utes which has been in existence according to the Register-Call five months is that no one has been hurt during the whole of the fierce contest.

The opposition to the Ute agreement is dying out. Senator Teller no longer insists that all the Utes shall be sent out of Colorado. He has simply added some harmless amendments. Now the Chieftain wheels into the line of common sense and thinks it best not to oppose the treaty. This is much better than calling for indignation meeting. The Chieftain's article of March 24 on the "Ute Treaty" is the only sensible one that we have read in that paper on this subject and we hasten to acknowledge its merits. The article alluded to is not one of the adjective sort.

INTERESTING FACTS.

The statement published in the Mining Record regarding the transfer of stock during the months of February and March and the list of stockholders March 13th, is very significant. It seems that Chaffee & Moffatt transferred, between February 21, 1880, and March 5, 1880, 85,398 shares of stock, of a par value of $8,539,800. The publication of this in the face of the assertions of Chaffee & Moffatt that they have not unloaded is very damaging. Another interesting statement is in regard to the amount of stock held by the directors of the company March 13th, which is as follows:

Directors.	Shares.
W. H. Barnum	1,000
James H. Chase	500
A. J. Dam	1,310
C. C. Dodge	100

In this it appears that the directors own only 16,000 of the 200,000 shares, or only a twelfth interest. This is enough to condemn the management. It cannot be considered unfair to draw the inference that the directors conspired with General Wilson to misrepresent the mine in his annual report so as to raise the price and enable them to unload their stock. Chaffee and Moffatt alone dispose of 85,000 shares, or nearly half the capital stock. Many of the directors were not in this swindle. Governor Tabor and others sold out their Little Pittsburg stock months ago and therefore were not interested parties. The above facts are plain and self-evident. Neither Mr. Chaffee or any man connected with the swindle ought to be recognized again as a friend of this state. They have done a great injury to Colorado in a most dishonest and dishonorable manner.

PARTY LOYALTY.

The Denver Republican says that Senator Conkling would probably not give "an earnest, enthusiastic, determined, inspiring support to anyone besides General Grant." All this goes to show that Senator Conkling is not a good republican. He cares less for the success of republican principles than his own prejudices. His position is much more unreasonable than that of the "young scratchers" whose party loyalty Conkling questions. They say they will not vote for Grant but will support any of the other candidates mentioned. Conkling will support Grant but will support no other candidate nominated. He will allow of no compromise, while the independent republican will accept anyone as a compromise. The Republican also speaks of Conkling in relation to the Hayes campaign of 1876. Had Bristow or Blaire been nominated that year, there would have been some excuse for Conkling's indifference as both were his personal enemies, but there was was no good reason for opposition to Hayes. He was simply sulky because he could not get the nomination and hence he would not work. This was in marked contrast to the conduct of Blaine, who labored unceasingly for the election of Hayes, who had the nomination which really belonged to Blaine. The Republican makes another mistake. The canvass in 1876 was not made by the independents. The party machinery was in Conkling's hands and Cornell was chairman of the state committee. The mean, contemptible conduct of Conkling in this campaign is thus mildly and approvingly stated by the Republican:—

"Mr. Conkling in no wise opposed Mr. Hayes, and did nothing to harm him. He was simply comparatively indifferent and inactive. He in effect just let the other fellows run the state to see how they would come out. And they certainly came out badly enough to gratify any spitefulness that he might have entertained."

The Republican says truly, that New York cannot be carried by the republicans unless Conkling supports the candidate. But it is wrong in stating that the republicans can carry New York without the "scratchers" vote. To show this, is possible the Republican says, that the candidate for lieutenant governor of New York had a majority of the votes, though Cornell was 40,000 in the minority. But the lieutenant governor was elected because of the support of the "scratchers" who scratched only the names of Cornell and Soule and voted the rest of the ticket. Soule was defeated on account of this by 12,000 votes, and Cornell would have been had not the Kelly element scratched Robinson. It is evident that no republican can carry New York who has not the support of the Conkling and Curtis elements, though the former is undoubtedly the stronger. Under these circumstances neither element, if patriotic, should insist on the nomination of a candidate objectionable to the other. Both could unite on Washburne, Grant's friend, or Senator Edmunds, Conkling's colleague in the senate. Good party policy demands a candidate acceptable to both elements. Any other course is impracticable and foolish.

AN UNINSTRUCTED DELEGATION.

The Leadville Herald of Thursday contained an open letter from Governor Tabor which strongly favors an uninstructed delegation to the Chicago convention. This is the position the GAZETTE has taken from the beginning, and we cordially endorse the sentiments contained in the letter. It is evident that the uninstructed delegations are likely to sway an immense influence in the coming convention. As Governor Tabor says, Colorado with three votes determined the presidential election in 1876, and with her six votes in 1880 may decide the nomination in favor of the man who can carry the republican banner victoriously. The views expressed by Governor Tabor on this subject are so statesmanlike and broad, and they are presented in such a forcible manner that we reprint the letter. It is addressed to the editor of the Leadville Herald and is as follows:

There is a disposition on the part of republican leaders of Colorado to send our delegation to Chicago labeled, like a package of goods, and consigned to some one of the presidential candidates. This, it seems to me, would be unwise and I trust different counsels will prevail in our state convention.

I cannot agree with those who think the coming presidential campaign will not be closely contested, or that the republican party can afford to be careless in its selection of a standard bearer. The nomination of the strongest man is a sacred duty, if not an imperative necessity. And by the strongest man, I do not mean the one who happens to be the most popular in Colorado, or any other given locality, but the one who commands the greatest degree of confidence among the masses, and will poll the largest vote throughout the union.

Who this man is, will be the problem presented at Chicago for solution. To solve it aright, the members of that convention should, it seems to me, be prepared to discuss and impartially consider the merits and demerits of the different candidates, and also weigh carefully the views and preferences of the different sections. They should, so far as possible, rise above personal and local prejudices, and look only to the success of the party throughout the nation; believing, of course, that in republican success lies the country's best and highest good. They should be entirely untrammeled by instructions, and free to exercise a wise and statesman-like discretion.

That our delegates should know and defer somewhat to the preference of our people, I admit; but we can rely upon them in this respect without instructions. If deemed advisable, the state convention might, by resolution, express what, in its opinion, would be this preference. But to go further, and imitating the examples of New York and Pennsylvania, deprive our delegates of all volition, would be to arrogate, so far as in our power, the very prerogative lodged in the hands of the national convention. This party's welfare, and the country's good, alike require that the members of that convention, while representing so far as may be reasonable and just, the biases of their respective states, should be free to support the candidate who appears to have the most popular strength, even though in so doing they are compelled to lay aside their own preferences, and the preferences of those they represent.

Besides, it is sound local policy for us to send an unpledged and uninstructed delegation to Chicago. That such a delegation will have more power and influence in the convention than it would if bound by instructions to support a particular candidate, is a proposition that hardly admits of argument. Instructed and pledged, they cease to be a doubtful factor in the problem. Their acts and arguments are regarded as the offspring of local prejudice, and an adherence to the behests of a state convention, rather than the result of deliberate convictions, based upon an intelligent and impartial investigation of the subject, and a patient hearing of the diverse preferences and views entertained in different sections of the nation. An unpledged delegation, composed of such men as Colorado will send, though few in number will command respect and exercise an influence that will be felt and acknowledged, and will reflect credit upon our young state. And should the contest be close, as is not unlikely, they might have the distinguished and conceded honor of determining the choice. Colorado, by her three votes in the electoral college, saved the republican party from defeat four years ago, and it is not impossible that her six votes in the coming convention will be potent to secure another triumph, by naming the man who will most surely lead us to victory next fall.

This letter is not written for the purpose of opposing, neither is it in support of, either of the candidates. I have no preference that is not the preference of the republicans of Colorado and of the nation. Whether the choice shall be the "Silent Soldier," the "Plumed Knight," or the hero of resumption, I, in common with the other republican voters of our cherished commonwealth, will be proud to honor him in my feeble way, and proud to follow him to victory.

I have written for the purpose of stating, and perchance securing the consideration of a few of the reasons that seem to me logical and sound, against sending our delegation to Chicago bound by the instructions of a state convention, to vote for a particular candidate.

Very respectfully,
H. A. W. TABOR.

SATURDAY, MARCH 27, 1880.

Is Life Worth Living?

A letter from Poughkeepsie, N. Y. signed by one of the aldermen, desired the opinion of brother Gardner on the query, "Is life worth living?" The president said he would like to hear expressions from the club, as it was a query of importance to all persons in the habit of living.

Slammer Stevens said he didn't really feel sure whether life was worth living o not. He thought much depended on the size of the wood-pile and the contents of the flour barrel.

Shadbite Smith knew that life was worth living. He had put in fifty-two years of it, and had had a mighty good time of it. He thought the more popcorn and cider one had around the house the longer they wanted to live.

Diogenes Fuller, A. R., sometimes thought he was living in vain. He had corns all summer and chilblains all winter, with a run of bilious fever in April, but take it on the whole it was undoubtedly worth any man's time to make a business of living.

"Gem'len," said the president, after a score of opinions had been advanced; "de man who libs de sort of life God meant he should wouldn't be tuckered out if put in a fousin' y'ars of it on dis moondane sphere. Dar was no need of line fences when Noah 'lef' de ark. Dar war no law suits when good ole Lijer was fed by de ravens. Ebery man's life am mostly as he makes it. A cheerful spirit, willin' hands an' a desire to do right will make life sweet an' pleasant. Meanness may pay too cents on de dollar to-day, but de stock falls flat to-morrow. Findin' fault an' growlin' 'round won't buy shingle nails. Wishin' we was rich won't hunt up new jobs of whitewashin' nor keep de baby's feet off de floo'. It am only de man not worf puttin' life inter in de fust place who says dat life hain't worf libin'. If am now time to disrupt, an' I declar' dis meetin' disrupted." Detroit Free Press.

The Family Rudder.

A Comstocker who was having his hair cut yesterday afternoon gave the barber particular instructions not to remove a long lock that projected in a somewhat unsightly way from the front of his head.

"It don't become you," said the barber.

"Can't help that," said the customer.

"Better let me take it off," said the barber.

"Just you leave it as it is," said the man.

"But," persisted the barber, "I can't give you a smooth, decent cut if I leave the hair so long in front. It will look like the very devil. I can't see what you want it left there for."

"That's because you don't know what it is you don't know the use of it."

"I know it's a bunch of hair and know that it's devilish unbecoming just where it is."

"Yes, it is a bunch of hair, and it is something more than a bunch of hair it's the family rudder."

"The family what?"

"The family sudder. When things don't do right at home my wife always grabs that lock of hair. She would feel lost without it. When she gets hold of that she can handle me steer me in the right course, so to speak, and when I go in the right course the whole family go in the right course and all is well. I've got used to it now and don't mind it. Should I lose my hair and become bald, or should you give me a fighting cut all over, there would be no way of steering me. I should become unmanageable, and sooner or later a total wreck. No, sir; don't you disturb the family rudder." Virginia (Nev.) Chronicle.

The French Crown Jewels.

Some time ago there was some talk about selling the magnificent collection of diamonds forming part of the French crown jewels. The collection is valued at 40,000,000 francs, and among other treasures contains the celebrated Regent diamond, alone worth 8,000,000 francs. Loath to disperse a collection of such artistic value, yet anxious to conciliate those republicans who wish the crown to be sold because they don't want any one to wear it, the government have decided upon the following course: The crown diamonds will be divided into three classes. 1. The hearaldic ones, having some artistic or historical interest. These will be deposited in the Apollo Gallery of the Louvre, and among them the famous Regent. 2. The diamonds having a special mineralogical value will be sent to the museum of natural history. 3. Those which may be considered mere jewelry, and of which the value is estimated at 3,000,000 francs, will be sold for the benefit of the museum funds.

Eugenie's Pearl Necklace.

The ex-Empress Eugenie's famous pearl necklace, now offered for sale, was composed of seven rows of pearls, each pearl being of the size of a large marrowfat pea. The clasp was an immense circular emerald surrounded with diamonds. It took the leading jewellers of Europe over three years to get together a sufficient number of pearls of the size and lustre required. The price paid for the necklace was $100,000. After the empress' flight to England she sent it to London to be sold. It was purchased by the King of Holland, who presented it to the celebrated Mme. Musard. After the death of this lady, it figured in the sale of her jewels, and was bought by a dealer in second-hand goods, in whose possession it still remains. The price now demanded for it is less than half its original cost, being $45,000.

"Select List"

Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Select List of Local Newspapers.

Many persons suppose this list to be composed of CHEAP, low-priced newspapers. The fact is quite otherwise. The catalogue states exactly what the papers are. When the name of a paper is printed in FULL FACE TYPE it is in every instance the BEST. When printed in CAPITALS it is the ONLY paper in the place. The list gives the population of every town and the circulation of every paper. IT IS NOT A CO-OPERATIVE LIST. IT IS NOT A CHEAP LIST. At the foot of the catalogue for each state the important towns which are not covered by the lists are enumerated. IT IS AN HONEST LIST.

An old advertiser writes: "I prefer the LOCAL LIST for the reason that, while but few persons in any particular town subscribe for a class medium (or large city weekly) nine out of ten subscribe for their local paper, and the tenth one borrows it from his neighbor."

An advertiser, who spends upwards of $5,000 a year, and who invested less than $350 of it in this list, writes: "Your select Local List paid me better last year THAN ALL THE OTHER ADVERTISING I DID."

The rates charged for advertising are barely one-fifth the publishers' schedule. The price for single states ranges from $2 to $80. The price for one inch one month in the entire list is $650. The regular rates of the papers for the same space and time are $3,083 16. The list includes 977 newspapers, of which 193 are issued DAILY and 784 WEEKLY. They are located in 807 different cities and towns, of which 28 are state capital, 371 places of over 5,000 population, and 485 county seats.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO. conduct an agency for the reception of advertisements for American newspapers. The most complete establishment of the kind in the world.

Eight thousand newspapers are kept regularly on file, open to the inspection of customers.

Every advertisement is taken at the home price of the paper, without any additional charge or commission.

An advertiser in dealing with the agency, is saved trouble and correspondence, making one contract instead of a dozen, a hundred or a thousand.

A book of 120 pages, containing lists of best papers, largest circulations, religious, agricultural, class, political, daily and country papers, and all publications which are especially valuable to advertisers, with some information about prices, is sent to any address on receipt of ten cents.

Persons at a distance wishing to make contracts for advertising in any town, city, county, state or territory of the United States, or any portion of the Dominion of Canada, may send a concise statement of what they want, together with a copy of the ADVERTISEMENT they desire inserted, and will receive, by return mail, an estimate of the cost.

For such information and estimate there is no charge.

Orders are taken for a single paper as well as for a list; for a single dollar as readily as for a larger sum.

Geo. P. Rowell & Co. also publish the American Newspaper Directory (price $5), in which will be found a complete list of all American newspapers, and a Gazetteer of the towns in which they are issued.

VILLAGE NEWSPAPERS.

A list of nearly twelve hundred county and village newspapers, having an aggregate weekly edition of 692,891 ACTUAL COPIES ISSUED.

Advertisements, large or small, can be inserted in the entire list for $6 a line per week, and reading notices for $12 a line. A card occupying one inch of space is inserted one week for $75, or one year for $2,000.

All the state departments were closed in Denver, during the time of Secretary Vickers' funeral.

Mrs. T. V. Case has removed from over the Engine House to the Hunt House, northeast corner of Nevada and Vermijo Avenues.

The post office clock was eleven minutes slower yesterday than Turney's regulator. The school house clock agreed with Turney's time.

The maps of Colorado, made from Hayden's geographical survey, have been presented to the public school by the secretary of the Interior.

The frog catching industry is prevalent in the southern part of Colorado. Some of the fruits of the frog catcher's toil can be seen to-day at the North End market.

The man who brags about Colorado weather narrowly escaped lynching yesterday at the hands of a justly enraged populace. It's an ill wind that blows nobody good.

The horses attached to the delivery wagon belonging to the grocer, Mr. Thomas Hughes, took a lively runaway yesterday. The damage will amount to about $75.

The remains of Mr. G. N. W. Rice, who died in Manitou yesterday, will be taken to Westerfield's undertaking establishment, there to await instructions from friends in the east.

Mrs. Laura M. King, whose death occurred yesterday, was a sister of Mrs. Lulu Thomas of this city. The body of the deceased will be sent to Louisville, Kentucky, on the morning express to-day.

We have received a very handsome card of invitation to the annual reception of the Richmond Hook and Ladder company, of Pueblo, Utah, to take place on the evening of April 1st.

Mr. Ainsworth Brown is spoken of as a candidate for alderman from the second ward. Mr. Brown is nearly round enough to fill the traditional requirements of the office. He is also a progressive man who would make a good city officer.

Wilbur's livery stable is ornamented with a handsome new sign. The center piece represents the heads of three horses drinking from a tank. The heads are portraits of "Seafoam," "Wallace" and "Colonel," three crack horses in Wilbur's stock.

Personal.

Mr. D. S. Covert is in the city.

Colonel Ensign returned from the east yesterday.

We learn from the Baptist Standard, of Chicago, that the Rev. James Goodman, late of this city, will address the ministers meeting at Chicago next Monday on Arnold's "Light of Asia."

Obituary—Douglas H. Ely.

The death of Mr. Douglas H. Ely will make a sad vacancy in his home and will prove a sorrow to his circle of young friends. Mr. Ely was a young man of unblemished character and possessed the love and esteem of his companions. He was recently a student in Colorado college and gave promise of becoming a thorough scholar. His death was sudden and the warmest sympathy will be extended to his bereaved relatives who are called upon to mourn his early death.

Chipping in for the Minister.

The colored sporting gentlemen of this city who will play poker might take a hint from the following incident which is alleged by the Ouray Times to have taken place in that city: "During a poker game at Newby's saloon last week, a discussion came up as to the respect and support which our ministers should have, and the good which it is believed the churches were doing. Some favored and others opposed. From this one of the boys proposed that they take up a collection for the Rev. Mr. Greene, believing him a good man and deserving help. The hat was passed round and the cards shoved aside, and thirty dollars was raised in a very short time. Gordon Kimball threw in ten dollars, while Carver Goss deserves the credit for agitating the question and donating quite liberally. Others 'chipped in' very liberally, but we did not learn their names. Ouray, in some respects, is not as good as it might be, but we venture to say that we have as many whole souled, open-handed men here as can be found in any town in Colorado."

The Dancing Academy's Masque.

The masquerade ball last evening given under the auspices of the dancing academy, ducted by Mr. J. H. Seek, which took place at Court House Hall, was a pleasant affair. The floor was well filled with dancers, and the costumes were varied and in some cases particularly striking. Mr. Krague, as a Dutchman, just over from the fatherland, was especially good, as were also Messrs. Wheeler and Varley, who appeared in nondescript attire made especially for the occasion, and like Joseph's coat, of many colors.

Among the ladies Mrs. Seek, Mrs. Clement, Miss Wilson, Miss Cumberland, Miss Graham and Miss Derr were cleverly disguised and attracted a great deal of attention.

Among those whose identity was disclosed by the unmasking we observed the following:

Miss Armston Spanish Princess.
Mrs. Seek Liberty.
Miss Cumberland—Tambourine Girl.
Mrs. S. L. Crawford Grand Duchess.
Miss Haran—Spanish Princess.
Mrs. Clement—Evening Star.
Mrs. D. G. Russell Lone Star.
Miss Wilson—Queen of Holland.
Miss Sadie Derr Winter.
Miss Belle Graham Snow.
Miss I. Sheidler Flower Girl.

Among the gentlemen we noticed the following:

W. Varley Humpty Dumpty.
A. N. Wheeler Harlequin.
J. F. Carr Louis XIV.
L. C. Dana Scottish Knight.
J. H. Jany—Ben Franklin.
H. Clement—Old German Gentleman.
C. H. Stine Hamlet.
Mr. Krague Dutchman.
Geo. Hughes—Charles II.
Geo. Millard—Robert Le Diable.
F. Edwards Judy.
A. Russell Indian.
Billy Carter Irishman.
Mr. Grimes Domino.

Leadville's Congregational Church.

The following which we find in the Leadville Democrat of last Thursday will be read with interest by the members of the Congregational church here, and also by the many personal friends of Mr. Paddock whose safe arrival in Leadville to take charge of the Congregational church there is reported. The Democrat says: "Rev. H. A. Paddock, the new minister to the Congregational church, arrived in Leadville yesterday from his home in South Haven, Michigan. Mr. Paddock brought with him the seats, window sash, glass, doors, a good organ and everything necessary to complete the church, with the exception of lumber for the floor. The plastering that was put on last fall froze so badly that it will be necessary to have the church replastered. This and other things to be done will delay the completion of the church some weeks and it will not be ready for occupancy before the first of May. When completed, the church will be one of the best in the city. The work of completing the church will be commenced at once. In the meantime the church society will be organized and services will be held on and after Sunday next in some of the other churches or in some school or public room. Rev. Thos Uzzell very kindly extended an invitation to Mr. Paddock to occupy his pulpit next Sunday and the invitation may be accepted. Mr. Paddock comes to Leadville with the finest testimonials of his superior ability as a minister. That he possesses energy and Christian determination the work he has already done for the church before he came can testify to. Contributions for the completion of the church will be solicited at once."

First Lecture of the College Course.

Notwithstanding the disagreeable state of the weather last evening, a fair audience greeted Dr. Horn at the college building to hear his lecture on the "Difficulties of the student's life," which is the first of a course to be delivered by different speakers. The doctor began his lecture by contrasting the splendid educational facilities of to day with those of thirty years ago, and showed that the progress made in this respect kept pace with our progress in everything else. Still, students of the present day with all their opportunities, have their difficulties to contend with. A habit of reading the light literature of the day was becoming a wide spread evil, and should be carefully guarded against. Another difficulty in the life of a student was association. Evil associations corrupted the young, and should, therefore, be made with great caution. The habit of retiring to rest at a late hour, the habit of smoking, and drinking intoxicating liquors was hurtful to mind and body, and no student who wished to make his mark in the world should indulge in any of these vices, particularly the last named.

The necessity of taking plenty of exercise, of close attention to study, of respect for the opinion of others and the attainment of character were strongly urged. The doctor's lecture was powerfully written, eloquently delivered and received with applause by the audience.

At the conclusion of the lecture, J. H. Fletcher by request spoke to the students on the necessity of acquiring a practical knowledge of the affairs of the world in addition to their learning. The audience then dispersed greatly delighted with the evening's proceedings.

Funeral of W. B. Vickers.

The funeral of the late W. B. Vickers took place at the family residence of the deceased on the corner of Curtis and 22nd streets, Denver, last Thursday morning. The Times gives the following account of the funeral services: "At 8 30 the pall-bearers, consisting of W. N Byers, M. J. Gavisk, Prof. Aaron Gove, John R. Hanna, Dr. F. J. Foltz, C. W. Sanders, and the Denver Press Club, of which Mr. Vickers was an ex president, assembled at Brown's undertaking establishment and proceeded to the residence in carriages. The house of Mr. Vickers was recently built, and is surrounded by residences of taste and culture. The body was enclosed in an elegant black walnut casket with silver trimmings. There were a large number of floral tributes from friends of the deceased, consisting of a crown, crosses, wreaths, anchors and other emblems. The family of the deceased, Governor Pitkin and family, State Auditor Stimson, Deputy Secretary of State Galloway, State Treasurer Culver, Adjutant General Hall, Col. Dormer, of the Register-Call, and the press club, occupied the principal room, Rev. Dr. Westwood, of the Central Presbyterian church, standing in the hall at the door. The exercises of the house were opened in singing "Rock of Ages," by a quartette in an adjoining room, followed by the reading of the ninety first psalm, and the fifteenth chapter of first Corinthians by Dr. Westwood, followed by a lengthy address, Dr. Westwood taking for his subject the last words uttered by Mr. Vickers: "Hope! Hope! Hope!" The address was an eloquent tribute to the deceased, and but few dry eyes were to be seen. Following a prayer, the quartette rendered a funeral dirge, "He's Gone," when after viewing the remains, the throng of people proceeded to Riverside where the exercises were concluded."

Gunnison City's Boom.

From all that we can learn from private correspondents, interviews and exchanges, Gunnison City is going to have a decided boom this summer. Lots are readily sold with but little reference to what part of town they are in. It is said that about half a section of land remote from the railroad depot, has been laid out in lots, and sold on speculation to non-residents who never expect to improve them. This of course will put a barrier in the way of building the city on these lands.

The board of the South Park railroad held a meeting in Denver last Thursday evening and decided upon the location of the depot in Gunnison City. Up to that time the question had not been settled, but it was then definitely fixed, by agreement, for the old railroad right of way from Mt. Carbon to Lake City, and a donation of sufficient grounds, for shops, freight tracks, yards and depot buildings, by the proprietors of the lands at the point selected. This is the center of about eight hundred acres of land owned by the Gunnison Town and Land company, of which Captain Loudon Mullin is president. Around the depot, about three-quarters of a mile west, of the most of the city lots already sold on speculation, on a beautiful plateau, near the banks of the Gunnison river, has been laid out the business part of town, soon to be a great commercial city,—and because it is west of the old plat it is called West Gunnison. In this part of the city no lots are to be sold on speculation. No one except he is going immediately to build thereon, can get a lot in this part of the city. The best lots therefore will be kept for those who build, and until they get there to see for themselves. No lots will be sold except by Captain Mullin on the very ground sold. But parties wishing good locations, by letter, may have eligible lots reserved for them until they arrive if they indicate to Captain Mullin, at Gunnison City, what kind of buildings they propose to erect.

Lots have been donated to Barlow & Sanderson for their headquarters and stables, near the depot. Mr. Bidwell is erecting a large store building in the same neighborhood. The company represented by Capt. Mullin, makes liberal concession to parties who propose to erect substantial buildings at once. It is understood, that to give room for the telegraph office, and other necessary rooms for its operations, the railroad company will at once erect depot buildings at Gunnison. The South Park Railroad telegraph line has been ordered to be extended at once from Buena Vista to Alpine, Pitkin City and Gunnison.

I herewith respectfully request all ladies and gentlemen actively engaged in the production of Queen Esther to attend our last two rehearsals at Court House Hall on Saturday, March 27th, and Monday, March 29th, at 7 o'clock p. m. The latter will be a full dress rehearsal. If all come prompt at the appointed time the rehearsal will be over earlier than usual.

The following postoffice changes have taken place during the last week: La Junta, Bent county, Colorado, James C. Denny; Watkins, Arapahoe county, Colorado, Charles Hamel; Tiptonville, Moro county, New Mexico, Thomas Foutzler.

Leadville is having a free fight over politics.

OUT WEST.

The figures on Mount 7 are coming out in bold relief.

Colorado has no regularly organized base ball club.

The Tabor Hose Co. of Leadville has fifty active members.

A Greeley man shot six geese at four shots before breakfast recently.

The Greeley school library is open to the public on Saturday afternoon.

It is estimated that ten thousand head of horses will be driven from Texas during the present season. Most of them will find a market in Kansas.

The Ouray Times says: "When a tenderfoot mining expert visits San Juan to make his report, he pastes a buckskin patch on the seat of his breeches, blacks one eye and sprinkles some pine boughs in his hair to make believe he is an old-timer, but his first question gives him away: 'How high is that gigantic superstructure which elevates its chawming crown of steadfast purity amid the bright, fleecy clouds of heaven?' We tumble to his racket at once and strike him for a patent right on tin whistles. He leaves; reports unfavorably. Result country dead for another year.
